Research with the Wechsler intelligence scales for adults: 1965-1970.
Guertin, Wilson H.

AB Critically reviews research of the past 5 yr. With the adult wechsler scales. Most investigators have used the wais to study comparative validity; short forms; special populations and applications; refinements and critiques; personality correlates; investigations of diagnostic value; special diagnostic groups; and scatter, patterns, and diagnosis. The review indicates that (a) there is no diminution in the number of researches in the area; and (b) while the quality of the research has improved, errors contained in earlier studies have been repeated.
