The essence of boredom.
Mikulas, William L; Vodanovich, Stephen J.

AB Presents a definition of boredom as a state of relatively low arousal and dissatisfaction that is attributed to an inadequately stimulating situation. Implications of this definition relative to assessment and intervention are considered. Issues of application and assessment are discussed.